UD LAW SCHOOL NAMES ACTING DIRECTOR
AND ASSISTANT DIRECTOR OF CLINICAL STUDIES

DAYTON, Ohio, August 8, 1980 --- Jerry E. Hogan, formerly assistant director of Clinical Studies has been appointed acting director of Clinical Studies of the University of Dayton School of Law. Dr. Norman George, acting dean, announced the appointment today following the resignation in July of Jeffrey E. Froelich who has entered private practice.

Hogan, 37, is a graduate of Fairmont High School (1961), Ohio State University (B.S., 1965), and the Salmon P. Chase College of Law (J.D., 1976). Prior to earning his law degree he was a school teacher and counselor for nine years in the Miamisburg and Dayton Public Schools and at Agat Junior High School on the Island of Guam.

Hogan has served as assistant director of Clinical Studies for the UD Law School since February, 1979.

The UD law dean also announced the appointment of a new assistant director of Clinical Studies. She is Lula M. Anderson, 26, a 1977 Harvard Law School graduate and currently assistant prosecuting attorney for Montgomery County.

Both Hogan and Anderson will assume their responsibilities on August 15.

The Clinical Studies program of the University of Dayton School of Law was begun in 1976 and gives law students experience in the UD Law Clinic, various governmental agencies, the courts, and law firms, providing both criminal and civil legal services.

Legal education had its beginnings in the community when established attorneys took in apprentices. The primary purposes of the Clinical Studies program at the University of Dayton School of Law are to reintroduce the community into formal legal education and to expose students to the public responsibilities of the profession.

"Externs" are second- and third-year law students who are placed in a wide variety of public agencies, courts and companies throughout the Miami Valley area. These students are required to work with and for their supervising attorney a certain number of hours during the term and to participate in practice-oriented seminars at the school.

"Interns" are third-year students, certified by the Ohio Supreme Court, who engage in the limited practice of law. Pursuant to the Court's guidelines, and under some supervision, these students actually represent clients and make court appearances in their behalf. Interns are placed with public law offices such as the Public Defender, Prosecutor's Office, or Legal Aid Society. Others practice from the school's Law Clinic.
